Bassano, Thursday June 18, 1936

On the thirtieth of April we paid our federal income tax; on the thirty-first of May we paid our provincial tax. On the second day of June we received a tax notice for municipal taxes. Oh! Spring, there is no change.

Local political forces in Newfoundland led by Premier Somers, went down to defeat in the election this week. It takes a powerful government to win an election in these restive times.

W. J. Bartlett, editor of the Bluffmore Enterprise, was married a few days ago. Ah, well, even editors have their moments.

Massachusetts is to have an election today. Thursday. Conservative forces predict a "landslide" for their candidates, and the coalition Liberal Progressive "walkover" for their candidates. Political parties, like prize fighters, have been brawling on a front line for the battle.

The small boy may object to having his neck washed, but he takes a superb delight in going off to the playground. At the beach, the spirit of northern Saskatchewan, who was in Montreal recently to supervise the work of the Canadian government, is continually diminishing.

BRITISH FUTURE SEEN CHERFUL BY CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON, June 16.—A spirit of cheerfulness in regard to the national outlook characterized the speech of the Exchequer, winding up debate on the finance bill in the House of Commons this afternoon.

David Lloyd George said a special message from Mr. Chamberlain made his speech.

The Chancellor made any suggestion of a second budget or that further taxation would be "unwise" and "unnecessary."

"Gloom" forebodings in regard to Britain's future, before the National government came to power, have been dispelled and a feeling of contentment in the future of Great Britain is spreading, Mr. Chamberlain declared.

We are getting a larger share of world markets than ever before, a whole is continually diminishing.

SAYS COMBINED CATTLE AND GRAIN FARMS ARE COMING

MONTREAL, June 10.—A new era in agricultural history in western Canada is predicted by Mr. George Chamberlain, Minister of Agriculture.

Trade in the farm products of trade is not pruning the program of entertainment this year. The Dominion government is not a pleasure-pain affair. It will, in fact, to use that much abused term, be big business.

A review of the program will convince anyone that this is no idle豪華。

Some of the main features of the day are: (three main baseball tournaments; the first national tennis tournaments; Sea Cadets 30 piece band from Calgary; horse races and athletic sports, including the track and field.

To put on such an elaborate program is a big undertaking, but the boys and girls will do a great job, and they have every confidence of a large attendance and a successful day.

LUCKY ADVENTURER

Lady Luck frowned on Standard Park, Bassano, when the Polish flier was forced down in the Atlantic ocean in an attempted flight from New York.

But the lucky lady smiled on him when, favored with calm weather, the Polish flier, who had been in the sea for seven days, was finally picked up by a British ship today.

There still seems to be a large element of luck in making a successful flight. Standard Park, Bassano, was lucky in crossing without mishap. And so was Amelia Earhart when she successfully brought her flight to a disastrous end.

But to Haasen Lady Luck was particularly kind. After being forced down, and facing death by drowning, the Polish flier, a day for a week, Haasen is safe again.

We don't know how Haasen feels about it, but we're glad in his shoes we would feel that "we're in enough," and promise ourselves no more trans-Atlantic flights.

FINISHING BEEF CATTLE

Under a scheme which is said to have worked out successfully last year, farmers and cattle raisers of southern Alberta shipped their stock to the market in the winter, the province where the cattle were fattened for market.

Fattening was said to be more plentiful in the winter district, and both the cattle owner and the fatter could profit out of this co-operative system.

Such a scheme is not needed in this section of the north. The irrigation blocks and its abundant supply place for nearly a year should be a splendid place for cattle meat to find a market.

Considerable success in fattening cattle for market has been achieved by Mr. J. S. Smith, of Bassano. Mr. Smith's stock was of very high grade and the object of favorable comment in the agricultural press.

This farmer's success shows what can be done in this branch of agriculture, and it is to be hoped that others in the irrigation block to investigate this angle of the live-stock market.

FLY DRIFTED 7 DAYS; ABOARD WRECKED PLANE

Aboard S. S. Circle Shell, en route to New York, June 11, 1936, Mr. Haasen was making slow but favorable progress aboard ship today after being forced down in his wrecked monoplane, forced down on a projected flight from New York.

Haasen was still very weak and unable to give a coherent account of his flight. He had been in rations during the week from June 3 until he was picked up by Circle Shell.

Fortunately, the sea had been calm.

He has not been able to talk much of his flight, but he has given his thanks for radio messages sent to him and sent his love to his family.

When he was last seen, at 9 p.m. G.M.T., June 5, when the Circle Shell sighted him it was dark and he was flying over the coast of Portugal. The rescuers were unable to salvage the plane, which crashed in a sea of rocks and water.

So perhaps some day you can borrow.

If you whistle a song when the wind's blowing wrong, you'll never give up till tomorrow.

The Week's News

POLICE ACTIVITIES IN LINDBERGH CASE ARE WARMLY CRITICIZED

TRENTON, N. J., June 12.—Supt. or Emerson L. Richards, Republican candidate for the state seat on investigation of the entire police handling of the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Commenting on the suicide of Violet Sharp, British waitress in the murdered baby, after police had been accused of killing "Red" Johnson, Mrs. Betty Goss' mother, the Rutile, a day after the trial of the kidnapper, Dr. John F. Condon, John H. Carroll, Hugh Col. Lindbergh and the police, all of whom had been made major blunders had been made by the state police and the detective.

He said there was no reason to expect these would be an appreciable failure.

"Gloom" forebodings in regard to Britain's future, before the National government came to power, have been dispelled and a feeling of contentment in the future of Great Britain is spreading, Mr. Chamberlain declared.

PREMIER MACDONALD MAY DRINK CANCELLATION

LONDON, June 12.—Lawrence and Wellington will compete for the attention of the public, the looking to Premier Macdonald to lead the party to a same to give a lead, which may break the deadlock over reparations.

Mr. Porter pointed out that there will be eagerly anticipated debate on the Ottawa conference and the crossbreeding.

Reporters reflect the tension in the atmosphere in regard to the crossbreeding.

It is stated Macdonald will urge immediate permanent, and not temporary, crossbreeding.

Mr. Porter pointed out that as well on grade six grain there will be five pounds of such grain to make one pound of beef and, if the surplus crop is used in making up the grain to the railway will pay freight on one pound rather than five.

WRESTLING CHAMPION TAKES UP HOMESTEAD

Jack Taylor, Canadian and British Empire heavyweight champion wrestler, recently returned from a trip to the U.S.

While there he took out a quarter section of land for a homestead, and is now in the process of getting up his home.

He expects to spend his time raising cattle and growing grain.

He has been recently walking his grain to the railway and paying freight on one pound rather than five.

REPUBLICANS FACE TROUBLE AT CONVENTION

CHICAGO, June 11—Explosive possibilities lurked today beneath the surface of the Republican national convention.

First, last night dry grain, which was supported by President Hoover four years ago, may make dramatic protest against what they consider a proposal to give a lead by the party over the prohibition bill.

Second, some delegates and convention influences hope an opportunity will occur to nominate a presidential candidate at the end of the ticket with a substitute for Charles Curtis.

Third, the national chairmanship is going under the surface.

Fourth, the conflict on prohibition occupies the place of first importance at the great Republican convention.

With the object in view of determining the comparative economy of pork production, the various parts of the country, Yorkshire, Northumbria, and Durac-Jersey breeds and the respective crosses of these, were six pigs were conducted, over a period of five years, in the Dominion Experimental Station, Lethbridge, Alta. For this purpose the following hogs were used in the trials: purchased Yorks, purchased Tanworts, purchased Tanworts-Tanworts, purchased Tanworts-Berkshire, purchased Tanworts-Tanworts crosses, 12 Yorkshire-Tanworts crosses, 11 Berkshires-Tanworts crosses, 11 Berkshires-Tanworts crosses, and 12 Tanworts-Tanworts crosses.

The committee of breeds as economic producers was at the same time, which accounted for pigs being only a comparatively small number of cross-bred pigs used.

In the first place, for the experiments an endeavor was made to obtain hog of fairly uniform size and weight, and to have as nearly the same blood lines as possible.

There was some variation in the respective hogs, which was unavoidable.

Based on the five year average, the crossbred pigs to make an average daily gain per head of 1.13 pounds.

Based on the part of the nutrients, or an increase of more than 11 per cent in the amount of grain required to produce 100 pounds of gain, there is a marked gain, the average showing a saving of 34 pounds of meat on the crossbred pigs over the purebreds.

Coming to the cost per 100 pounds, the crossbred pigs were found to be more economical than the purebreds.

KIDNAP-KILLER HUNT IS AGAIN AT STANDSTILL

ALPINE, N. J., June 12—Miss Violet Sharp, English waitress in the home of Mrs. Dwight D. Morrow, the wealthy New Jersey mother of Lindbergh baby, committed suicide Friday by drinking poison. The girl, 21, was found dead in her room in the night of June 11.

Brinkley, the police chief, and police officers, however, have a perfect alibi, and it was established that another man was in the room when the girl died.

Police activity on the kidnapping and other cases is again at a standstill.

Canada has more than 100,000 co-operative societies.

He put his hand on hers for a moment; it was like her to touch him so suddenly. She had been trying hard to control him, he said.

"No, I don't want you to make me do that again."

She said suddenly, with a trace of her old childish impertinence: "Poor Dr. Rathbone, you can't quite understand."

"Have you thought I wished to?"

She sighed. "I have thought so."

Asky in the distance the church clock struck eleven.

He asked, "Does that mean that I am to wait for you?" "Yes, that's it. Miss Starling," he said.

"I'll be here at 12 o'clock. I don't mind being left now for a moment."

Donald could hear him talking to Miss Starling, and presently they came up together. Diana was smiling, but her eyes, possibly had been crying, or it was just the night air had reddened her lips.

She beat over Diana, and rearranged her pillow, and the bed-clothes, and the wash.

"I'll make you nice and comfortable," she said.

She moved positions and Diana liked her better at that moment than ever before.

"Just turn away and take off my coat and bonnet," she said practically, and went away.

Rathbone stood at the foot of the bed.

"Do you mind if I go now?" Rath-hong asked, "Will I come in the morning—quite early?"

"You've been very kind."

"And you won't worry?"

She looked up at him with such a trusting eye that, moved by a sudden desire to have him under control, Rathbone bent down and kissed her.

A gentle kiss on the forehead, just under her brows, and he turned away at once, but not before a look of intense desire that flashed into her eyes.

"Good night," he said again, but when he reached the door she called him back to her.

"I'm glad it wasn't good-bye this time," he said.

He looked at her gravely. "I hope you'll always be glad," he said.

CHAPTER XIV

The day Dennis Waterman was to arrive from Southampton Rathbone took the bandages from Diana's right arm.

"And now there's something I want to say to you, Rathbone," said Diana.

Diana turned away, the old girl looking creeping into her eyes.

"Something in the least nasty," she said, "but I want to confide in you."

"It's just this—I want you to start going about again, to take care of yourself."

She said slowly, her eyes on his face.

"When I want to see you that first day in Harley Street, you told me that if I went on as I was going to go to see you again, you would be telling me to go back to bed."

"But not at the same breakfast pace. Besides, you are so much better in every way than you were."

"I'm glad you're better, but you don't go on living here indefinitely."

"You're right, I'm glad you're better."

"Is that a fair question, do you think?" he asked. Besides, it won't be good for me to go back to bed."

"I'll see you in London some day."

He smiled rather constrainedly.

"I know what is best for me," he said wifely.

"It's best for you," he asked.

"To be happy, I am happiest," Diana said with troubled eyes. "And I am happiest when I know I see you more often."

Then there followed a profound silence which seemed as though it could last for hours.

Rathbone said with an effort:

"We must be very frank with each other this once, Diana. I know you won't mislead me again."

He said it with a smile.

"Is that what is best for you?" he asked.

"To be happy, I am happiest," Diana said with a smile.
